Love and laugh with the girls of Benson Creek, as these Mail Order Brides overcome personal challenges to find new lives—and good men to share them with—on the Western frontier.

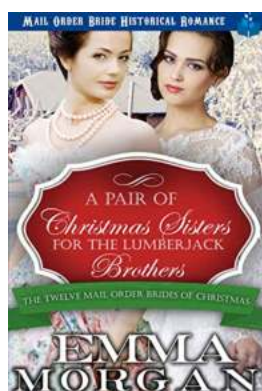

Crippled by polio, Gertie Weston has come to Benson Creek as a Mail Order Bride hoping to start a family at last—but instead she steps off the stage to find that her husband-to-be has drowned just before her arrival.

Gertie was taught not to accept pity or charity from anyone, and she is used to being shunned. But now she has found herself alone in a strange town as the owner of a prosperous gold mine, left to her by her prospective husband. It seems every man in town is looking to wed her—regardless of her limp.

A skilled and kind horseman, Fred Toller can recognize a wounded soul when he sees one. And when he's looking into Gertie's tawny eyes, he sees right through her tough exterior. But he's not looking for a wife, even though every other man in town seems to have thrown his hat into the ring.

So how to decide the best man for the job? With a contest, of course! Except Gertie has her eyes set on Fred Toller, and it's up to her to ensure he wins a competition that he doesn't even know he's entering!
