A little dare never hurt anybody...

I'm ready to rock my senior year. So what if my parents are recently divorced, the captain of the cheerleading team hates me more than tan lines, or that I've been forced to wear the school's smelly mascot costume? Those things I can handle. (Maybe) But if I get to sing my original song at the town's big centennial event, I'll be on my way to living the life I've always dreamed.

But there's only one problem:

Collin thinks-he's-God's-gift-to-women Preston.

Foster kid. Bad boy. And star quarterback of the Rock Valley High football team.

It's bad enough that the whole school thinks we made out at a party (Nothing happened. Seriously.), but now I've been partnered with Collin to perform at the centennial event. If I get it my way, he'll drop out and we'll both forget our near-kiss ever happened.

But Collin and his cocky half-grin aren't easy to forget.

Neither is the shiver-inducing way he looks at me.

I've got to keep my eyes on the prize, but being around Collin might just be the distraction that I need.

This is a sweet young adult romance in the Rock Valley High series of stand-alone novels.
