One man.

Four women.

Seventeen mysterious years.

Dóra, Gabi, Szilvi, and Judit: They were best friends in high school, but a terrible secret bound them together for life. After a delirious night ending in tragedy they make a pact to leave the country. They must flee to where the past can't catch up with them. But before they say good-bye they vow to meet again in Budapest, seventeen years later.

Life scatters them to four corners of the world. Dóra starts her new life on the Island of Bali and though she lives in the land of Earthly Paradise, all she can think about is her unfulfilled, lost love. Szilvi secretly writes a novel in which their shared past plays an important role. Gabi is torn between two successful and charming men, while Judit finally gets the man she'd never even dared to dream of...

Seventeen years pass and the date of their reunion draws near. Have they found happiness? Can best friends betray each other for the sake of love? What other surprises does their mysterious past have in store for them? Is it possible to forgive and forget?

Eva Fejos is a journalist and novelist, author of eighteen best-sellers. She loves sunshine, coffee, chocolate and travel, writes her novels in the evening and late at night, and hates getting up early.

The novel contains description of sexual acts. This book is intended for mature audiences.

"One of the Top Ten Sports Books of 1994" —The Sporting News

"There is nothing tougher to endure than a major college football season, and that includes the White House, the CIA, and the FBI, and Ken Doolinger's For the Glory has done just that. In doing so he has delivered a remarkable portrait of college football: the game, the kids, the locker, and the arena."

—John Gruber, author of 2 Seasons on the Field

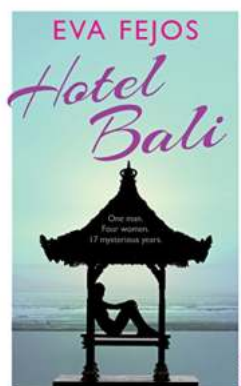

Here are the college football experiences as seen through the eyes of the young men who play the game. Sportswriter Ken Doolinger takes the reader on a four-year odyssey into the lives of one scholarship class and reveals their experiences at Penn State and its Coach Paterno program.

Ken sees great extraordinary scenes in the Penn State program—meeting with the coaching greats and then onto the field and in the locker room. He became a friend and confidant to the players and found every player had the same desire to bring glory to himself and his school and then moved to the NFL, to the great city of New York. Ken saw amazing scenes of triumph against the odds, injuries, determination, and failure.

Here are the dreams, fears, and pressures facing young men who are expected weekly to thousands of screaming fans. Here is a true picture of life in Division I college football. Anyone interested in Penn State, college football, or the larger world of sports and success will find For the Glory an unforgettable experience.

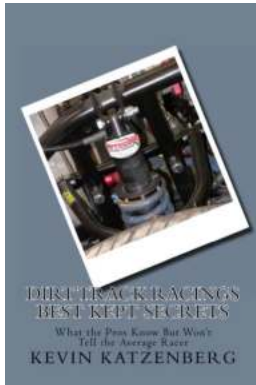

KEN Doolinger is a sportswriter for The Washington Post and covers college football. He lives in Gaithersburg, Maryland. He is a Penn State alum, class of 1964.
