When Katherine Mortimer sets off from her home in New England to marry single, childless Wyoming farmer, Walter Langford, she dreams of romance, love, and a happy ever after.

Unbeknownst to Katherine, as she travels across the country to meet him, Walter is given the dreadful news that his neighbors have been killed, naming him as guardian for their son without his knowing anything about it!

Walter is shocked and stunned.

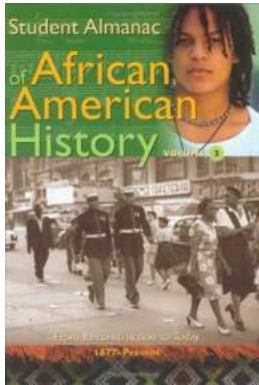

What will Katherine make of the situation and, furthermore, will she still want to be his bride?

Katherine immediately bonds with Gregory and all seems to be going well, but Walter has his own demons to overcome and it looks less and less likely that the marriage will ever happen.

Can Katherine and Walter put aside their differences and finally become a happy family together?

Or will Walter's demons prove too much for them all, ending up tearing them apart?
