Becoming One with the Machine

Every aircraft has its own personality. As a pilot, you not only fly the plane, but you also become one with it. The connection between a pilot and their aircraft is something special. The more you fly, the better you understand its nuances. You learn to anticipate its every move and respond with confidence.

The dream of flying one airplane at a time takes you on a journey of discovery. You learn not only about the technicalities of aviation but also about yourself. It becomes a journey of self-discovery and personal growth, as you navigate the skies and overcome any challenges thrown at you.

Embracing the Community

Flying is not just about taking to the skies in solitude. It is also an opportunity to embrace a vibrant and supportive community. There is a special camaraderie among pilots, a shared passion that brings people together. Whether you are a student pilot or an experienced aviator, you will find yourself surrounded by like-minded individuals who celebrate the joy of flying.

Joining aviation clubs and organizations opens the door to networking and learning from experienced pilots who are willing to share their wisdom. This sense of community provides a strong support system that will accompany you throughout your journey as a pilot. Together, you will embark on new adventures, exchange stories, and form lifelong friendships.

Flying for a Purpose

Aside from the joy of flying itself, becoming a pilot also offers numerous opportunities to fly for a purpose. You can become involved in charitable organizations that utilize aviation to make a difference. Flying medical missions, transporting supplies to remote areas, or participating in search and rescue operations are just a few examples of how you can use your skills to help others.

Flying for a purpose adds depth and meaning to your journey in the sky. It allows you to give back to society and make a positive impact. The experiences gained from these missions are often unforgettable, leaving a lasting impression on both the pilot and the communities they serve.

Flying the dream one airplane at a time is a life-changing experience. It unleashes a passion in you that only pilots can truly understand. Soaring through the sky, embracing the freedom, and connecting with a tight-knit community of aviators are just a few reasons why this pursuit is so captivating.

If you've ever yearned to fly, it's time to take the leap and turn your dream into a reality. The sky is waiting for you, ready to unveil its wonders and secrets. Start your journey of becoming a pilot today and embark on an adventure like no other.

Come along on an incredible journey where we had no idea where the adventures were. We just let the airplane take us there. The exciting part is, you never know what's next. As a ferry pilot, you don't get to choose what airplanes to fly, the destination, or the weather. And you don't get to choose the life-threatening complications.

Sanford has been lucky enough to spend a great deal of his flying career in what we call bush country. The wilderness in the northern region of the United States and Canada is beautiful but non-forgiving. Classroom training is useful, but there is no better reward in life than the real experience of successfully flying over the wilderness to destinations most people will never see or go. There are no airport terminals, airline schedules, or rental car services at the most pristine places in the world! 9-1-1 simply doesn't exist! Special planning becomes routine, life-saving survival gear is standard equipment. Diverting to a local airport while in route to avoid some rough weather, or stop to stretch your legs and have a soda pop, is not an option. It is definitely not for everyone. But if you are willing and capable to step outside, where there are no warning labels that tell you how to wash your hands, in this little so-called safe world, where somebody else is taking you by the hand and leading you through life, the rewards are endless!

Airplanes have opened up the world to us, and we have seen and visited so many places that we may never have known about. The journey is never the same. The risks seem high, but are worth the rewards. We had no one to share these incredible experiences with, until now.
