Why that book?

Why is there no book about Cairo for children? I asked myself several times when I was standing confused in the bookstores. I searched around went through the shelves and left mostly very disappointing. I had enough of books about hieroglyphs and dead Pharaohs. I knew it was time that Egyptian children learn more about the culture and the city they are living in. So I decided to make a book by myself. A book that I would like to see in Egyptian bookshelves. A book that I would love to read to my children and to my children's friends. I wanted to create a simple and joyful book that is engaging and fun. I had a clear vision in my mind and I wanted it to be transformed into reality.

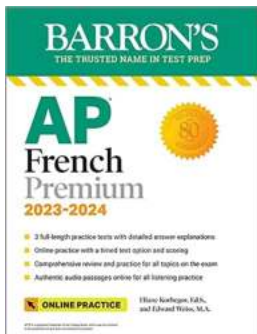

In Ahmed Hossam I found a very talented young Egyptian illustrator who understood my idea on the spot. His style of drawing was perfect for representing my ideas. I hope this book will bring a lot of happiness to Egyptian houses. I wish it will make you smile and laugh with your children. We need to read more! Please switch off the screens for your children.

There is so much beauty in reading books.
