“Off to the Clean Air” is a true story of an amazing family adventure in outback Australia in 1965. In a modified Holden sedan, the family of eight explores the heart of Australia through mountains and deserts and rain forests. From their home in suburban Melbourne, they travel to Adelaide, Port Augusta, Wilpena, Alice Springs, Tennant Creek, Mt. Isa, Townsville, Cairns, then back down to Brisbane, Sydney, Canberra returning to Melbourne. The author’s personality and abilities as a wife, mother, and organizer shine forth in this travelogue.
