Don Robinson's interest in boats began with a trip in a motorboat from Dunkerque to Paris. The trip was far from successful, but it led to a fascination for sailing boats. A taster sailing day in an open boat in a howling wind on the River Blackwater had him hooked.

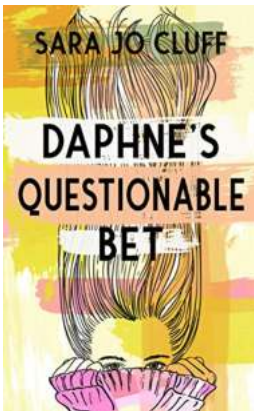

"Escape to the Sea" is a lively and engaging autobiographical story of what it is really like to own and sail boats from dinghies to 32 foot motorsailers; what it is like to buy and maintain a boat, deal with problems, sail on short holidays, sail abroad, sail single-handed at night, live aboard, own different types of boats, take a Day Sailor Practical course.

If you are thinking of buying a boat and this book puts you off, it will save you a massive amount of money. If you already are a sailor, it might give you ideas, some entertainment, some useful advice.
