Derek Conlon suffered polonium poisoning at the hands of international spies. The innocent bystander reached the depths of despair and a decade playing piano on top cruise ships around the world proved to be his saviour. 'Sea's the Moment' tells of ten-years onboard with the opportunity to visit exotic destinations around the world. It provides an insight into entertaining, everyday ship life, guests, crew mates and a number of tips for those planning a vacation on the high seas. The one off true stories are often amusing, occasionally cringeworthy and definitely worth a read. 'Seas the Moment' is more than a very good book about life onboard ship - it is the story of a man that turns his life around in the most unusual surroundings.
