Two teenage cousins loved to write poetry in the 1980s before the internet was a thing. Topics near and dear to their hearts--crushes, breakups, friendship, pets, books and nature--are the focus of poems in this collection. Thirty years later, after marriages, divorces and children, Kari and Terrie's dream of publishing a book is finally realized.

Beautiful illustrations and personal photos bring their words to life, preserving a little piece of history.
