

The Sweet Terrible Glorious Year Truly Completely Lost It

They say that time heals all wounds, but what if time itself is the wound? The year that we now leave behind will forever be engraved in our memories as a roller coaster ride of emotions, an amalgamation of joy and despair, victory and defeat. It was the year that, in its sweet terrible glory, truly made us question our very existence. This is the tale of the year when we completely lost it.

The year began just like any other, filled with hope and aspirations. Little did we know that it would turn into an unruly beast, a wild ride that would test our resilience and redefine our limits. As the days passed by, we found ourselves grappling with unforeseen challenges, unexpected twists, and devastating losses.

From political turmoil to natural disasters, everything seemed to conspire against us. Each passing month brought a new wave of chaos, leaving us gasping for breath. The weight of the world seemed to rest on our shoulders, and yet, we carried on, hoping that better days were just around the corner.

But amidst the chaos and uncertainty, there were moments of pure brilliance that shone like rays of sunlight through the stormy clouds. The resilience and determination displayed by individuals and communities were awe-inspiring. Against all odds, we witnessed acts of kindness, bravery, and selflessness that restored our faith in humanity.

We lost loved ones, we lost jobs, and we lost our sense of normalcy. But through it all, we found strength in each other. We discovered the power of unity and solidarity. The bonds we formed during this tumultuous year were unlike anything we had experienced before. We clung to each other for support, for comfort, and for a glimmer of hope.

As the year trudged on, we found solace in the little things. We cherished every moment spent with our loved ones, holding them a little tighter, knowing that life can be fleeting. We relished the beauty of nature, finding solace in its tranquility. We appreciated the simple pleasures that we had taken for granted for far too long.

In the sweet terrible glory of this year, we were forced to confront our inner demons. We faced our fears, our insecurities, and our flaws head-on. We became more introspective, more self-aware, and more resilient. We discovered hidden strengths and untapped potentials within ourselves, emerging from the abyss stronger than ever before.

But what about those who truly lost it? What about those who succumbed to the relentless waves of despair? It is important that we acknowledge their struggle, their pain, and their sacrifices. This year may have tested us all, but for some, the battle was simply too much to bear.

Yet, even in the darkest of times, glimmers of light pierced through the thick veil of darkness. We saw communities rallying together, offering support and compassion to those who needed it the most. We saw people fighting for justice, demanding change, and refusing to stay silent. We saw the beauty of resilience in the face of adversity.

Now, as we bid farewell to this remarkable year, we can look back with a mix of emotions. It wasn't easy, it wasn't pleasant, but it was transformative. We have grown, we have evolved, and we have learned invaluable lessons that will shape our future path.

The sweet terrible glorious year truly completely lost it. It pushed us to our limits, challenged our notions of normalcy, and altered our perspective on life. But through the chaos and devastation, we found hope, we found strength, and we found ourselves.

And so, as we step into the new year, let us carry the lessons learned, the resilience gained, and the compassion discovered. Let us be grateful for every sunrise, every smile, and every opportunity to make a difference. Let us remember the sweet terrible glory of the year that truly made us question, reflect, and ultimately, grow.

IN MY FAMILY, when anyone rides the wave of their emotions, we say they're chucking a birkett. When the emotion drives out all common sense, we say they're chucking a big one. The telltale signs are: flaming cheeks, shortness of breath, bulging eyes, and a prolonged illogical outburst. Gemma Stone is convinced that it's always unseemly to chuck a birkett and that it's actually insane to chuck one in front of a complete stranger. But that was before she fell for a boy who barely knows she exists, before she auditioned for the school play, before she met the family of freaks her sister Debbie is marrying into, before the unpredictable Raven De Head took an interest in her, and before she realized that at the right time and for the right reason, a birkett could be a beautiful thing.
