Awe-Inspiring Landscapes

Over the course of thirty years, John discovered some of the most breathtaking landscapes the world has to offer. From the lush greenery of New Zealand's South Island to the vast deserts of the American Southwest, each new location brought with it a unique visual allure that left him spellbound.

One of the highlights of John's journey was his encounter with the mesmerizing Aurora Borealis in the Arctic Circle. As he camped under the glowing night sky, the dancing lights captivated his senses, igniting a profound sense of awe and wonder within him.

Cultural Immersion

While breathtaking landscapes were a crucial part of this biking odyssey, John's real fascination was interacting with the diverse range of cultures he encountered. From sharing stories with local farmers in rural villages to engaging in spirited conversations with fellow travelers in bustling cities, he connected with people from all walks of life.

John's experiences of cultural immersion allowed him to learn about traditions, customs, and cuisines that were vastly different from his own. As he sampled exotic dishes, danced to traditional music, and participated in local festivals, he gained a deep appreciation for the richness and diversity of the human experience.

Learning From Challenges

A thirty-year biking odyssey is not without its fair share of challenges. From navigating treacherous terrains to enduring extreme weather conditions, John faced adversity head-on and learned invaluable lessons along the way.

One particularly memorable experience was John's encounter with a life-threatening thunderstorm deep in the heart of the Amazon rainforest. As the rain poured and thunder roared, he found himself relying on his inner strength and resourcefulness to survive. This encounter taught him the importance of adaptability and resilience in the face of adversity.

An Inspiring Legacy

Today, thirty years later, John's biking odyssey has left an inspiring legacy. Through his captivating stories and breathtaking photographs, he continues to encourage others to embrace their wanderlust and pursue their own adventures on two wheels.

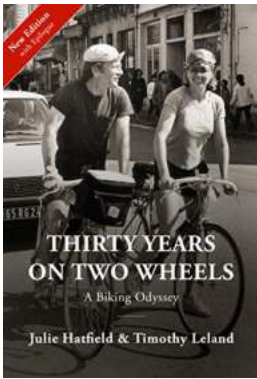

Whether it be a short weekend getaway or a grand multi-year expedition, there is something truly liberating about exploring the world on a bicycle. John's biking odyssey stands as a testament to the indomitable human spirit and the transformative power of travel.

In 1983, when a friend at a party mentioned she had just returned from a bike trip in Europe –“the best trip of my life” -- Tim Leland and his wife Julie Hatfield were intrigued. Two weeks later they signed on for a guided bicycle trip to Bordeaux. So began a 30-year biking odyssey that took these two Boston Globe writers to eight countries on twelve different tours. The Globe travel section chronicled their experiences each time they went. The second edition of this funny, beautifully descriptive book -- based on those articles -- captures everything unique about the joys of traveling on two wheels in foreign lands: the fragrances, the tastes, the sights, the sounds. You will fall in love, as they did, with the idea of slow travel down tiny vineyard lanes, far removed from the air-conditioned tour buses that keep you away from the real thing.
