2. Visit the Veterinarian for a Check-Up

Before hitting the road, take your feline family members for a thorough check-up with their veterinarian. Ensure they are up to date on vaccinations and have flea and tick prevention measures in place. Discuss any specific concerns you have about traveling with your cats and ask for professional advice on how to make the journey more comfortable for them.

3. Introduce Your Cats to the RV Gradually

Cats can be wary of new environments, so it's essential to introduce them to the RV gradually. Start by allowing them to explore the RV while parked in a familiar location, such as your driveway. Encourage positive experiences by offering treats and praise. Gradually increase the time spent inside the RV to help them adapt to the new space.

4. Plan Frequent Stops for Exercise and Playtime

It's crucial to consider your cats' exercise and playtime needs during your RV journey. Cats need opportunities to stretch their legs and release energy. Plan frequent stops along your route where your cats can enjoy supervised outdoor time in a secure area. Use a harness and leash system to keep them safe while exploring.

5. Create a Comfortable Resting Area

Cats enjoy having a cozy space to rest and relax. Dedicate a specific area in your RV solely for their comfort. Provide soft bedding, including their favorite blankets or pillows. Consider using pheromone diffusers or calming sprays to create a soothing atmosphere to ease any stress or anxiety your cats may experience during the journey.

6. Maintain a Consistent Feeding Routine

Cats thrive on routine, so it's crucial to maintain a consistent feeding schedule while on your RV journey. Stick to their regular diet to avoid any digestive issues. Pack an ample supply of their favorite food and treats, ensuring you have enough to last the duration of your trip. Keep their food and water bowls easily accessible and secured to avoid spills while on the move.

7. Take Precautions During Travel

While traveling, it's essential to secure your cats in the RV for their safety. Invest in quality pet carriers or seat belts designed specifically for cats. This will protect them from potential injuries in case of sudden stops or accidents. Never let your cats roam freely inside the RV while it's in motion.

8. Be Mindful of Temperature Changes

Cats are sensitive to temperature changes, so it's crucial to keep them comfortable throughout the journey. Ensure your RV has proper ventilation and air conditioning for warmer days. Similarly, provide warm bedding and insulation during colder weather. Monitor the temperature inside the RV regularly to prevent any discomfort for your feline family members.

9. Research Pet-Friendly Destinations

Before starting your RV journey, research pet-friendly destinations along your route. Look for RV parks or campgrounds that welcome cats and offer amenities suitable for your feline companions. Some parks may have designated pet areas or trails where your cats can explore safely. Knowing pet-friendly locations in advance will help you plan your itinerary accordingly.

10. Enjoy the Journey and Make It Memorable

Remember, the RV journey with your feline family is not just about reaching the destination—it's about making unforgettable memories along the way. Embrace the adventure and spend quality time with your cats. Capture precious moments on camera, explore nature together, and cherish the bond you share with your furry travel companions.

Embarking on an RV journey with your feline family can be an enriching and rewarding experience. By following these helpful tips, you can ensure a successful trip that will create lasting memories for both you and your beloved cats. So, get on the road, savor the freedom of RV living, and embark on an extraordinary adventure!

RV Travel With Cats Is Easier Than You Might Think!

In the fall of 2017, my best friend and I made the decision to take to the road for RV living with cats. Four cats, to be exact!

It was a scary thought, as we imagined all that could go wrong: everything from a cat escaping on us to our cats getting hurt in an accident to any one of them just not being happy in a small space. We spent time reading information from a variety of blogs and websites, and, while these had great information, none of them covered all of the topics we were looking for in one place.

Learn Everything You Need To Know About RV Living Cats

We tried to think of everything in terms of how to make the space safe and comfortable while also providing entertainment and exercise. Even with all of the preparations, once we began our life on the road, we discovered that there was still a lot we had overlooked.

We had some anxious moments and a few mishaps (like my cat, Gatsby, escaping through the slide in the screen door...more than once) and we learned a lot in the process. Our cats are now very well adjusted and very happy with their new life. They are happier than they were in their stationary life, and we cannot imagine them going back to their old life.

In this book, I have compiled tips for getting ready to RV travel with cats.

Find Out How To Prepare Before You Go and What To Expect When With RV Living Cats

I cover the journey from preparations to your vehicle and what to bring for kitty from home to what to prepare for on travel days and whether to leash train your cat for outside time.

These tips are based on our experiences. It is my hope that they will offer reassurances in your decision to RV travel with cats, whether you're planning on full-time RVing or simply wanting to take your feline family on vacation with you. If you're already making preparations, this guide may help you feel more confident in what you are doing to get ready for this new adventure.

I also hope to reduce the trial-and-error and anxious moments by covering some less than obvious and easily overlooked aspects of RV travel with cats. In spite of what it might seem like now, cats can thrive in the RV life. This book will guide you through steps to shorten the adjustment period for your cats and give you peace of mind in your decision to embark on this new journey.
