17-year-old Monica Birch has had her heart broken by her ex-boyfriend. Suddenly (hot) popular London Michaels seems to want to mend it. Mmm. London is the boy Monica wants with all her heart. But is he just trying to vex his ex--who hates Monica with a fiery passion--or are his hot moves (such as saving Monica from humiliation from her ex-boyfriend) the workings of a boy in love? His sexy stare has Monica breathless, since his eyes look full of longing. But Monica's heart is just now healing. Can she really trust her wounded heart in the hands of a hot boy?

This book is told in two parts. (They are both in this book.) The other part of the story is about Monica's friend, Jane Air, who has caught the gorgeous eye of handsome, brooding, mysterious Hunter Rochester--the boy that broke Jane's heart. Eek! (Jane's half of the story was previously titled: Jane's Air.)
